

Fudan-Paris1 Double Degree Master Program in World Economy(Globalization and World Economy) in English

1. Brief Introduction

The faculty of economics of Paris 1 Pantheon-Sorbonne University and the school of Economics of Fudan University, which are leading Economics Departments in France and China, have joined their efforts to initiate an innovative Double-Degree Masters International Program in Economics specialized in Globalization and World Economy.

This program, starting in 2008, trains Chinese and non-Chinese economists who will become key experts in Euro-Chinese economic relations.

2. Duration of the program

This integrated master program stretches over two years. Students are required to spend their first academic year (3 semesters) at Université Paris 1 and the second academic year (2 semesters) at Fudan University.

3. Program Structure

Year 1 : Students will register as full-time students both at Paris 1 and Fudan. The first academic year (two semesters) will be organized in Paris 1 starting from September. For the first two semesters, students will be enrolled in the "Pantheon Sorbonne Master in Economics (1st year)" programme, which is a program specifically designed at Paris 1 for English-speaking students and giving the same course content as the regular program of 1st year of Master for French and French-speaking students. Chinese students will be also offered classes of French as a foreign language, while non-Chinese students will be offered classes of Chinese as a foreign language. Only students who will have successfully completed the first two semesters will be allowed to continue. Students in the double degree will follow a summer semester consisting of 4 level M2 courses at Paris 1 before leaving for China and completing the 2nd year of master at Fudan. The courses and tutorial activities at Paris 1 will be worth 440 +tutorials hours and 76 credits (in the European ECTS system).

Year 2 : The second academic year (two semesters) will be organized at Fudan starting in September. For these two semesters, students will be enrolled in the "Fudan Master in Economics (2nd year) specialized in World Economy" programme. The courses and tutorial activities at Fudan will be worth 212 hours and 45 credits (in the European ECTS system) including 14 credits for the grading of their final report, which can be either their Fudan Master thesis validated as a Paris 1 research dissertation or an internship report
